WHY THE SOCIAL SCIENCES MATTER

Published with the support of the Academy for Social Sciences, this volume emphasises the indispensability of the social sciences in improving our understanding of the world today, providing an illuminating look at topics of concern to everyone at the beginning of the twenty-first century. Leading social scientists tackle complex questions such as immigration, unemployment, climate change, war, banks in trouble, and an ageing population.

‘Humanity today needs high-quality social science more than ever — this book brilliantly shows why and how this is so.’
- David Inglis, University of Exeter, UK
